

Carl Klevinski Named Technical Director of CRMC Laboratory Services

The Administration of Cortland Regional Medical Center (CRMC) is pleased to welcome Carl Klevinski as the medical center's new Technical Director for Laboratory Services. He is responsible for the overall operation of the department, including planning, policy setting, quality improvement, staffing, and directing activities of the laboratory, anatomic pathology, and transfusion services. In addition to the laboratory on the medical center campus, CRMC operates community laboratory centers on Euclid Avenue and West Road.

Carl brings nearly 30 years laboratory experience to his new role, from medical technologist to sales representative to various supervisory positions. Prior to joining CRMC, he worked for 11 years as Administrative Laboratory Director at St. Joseph's Hospital in Elmira. While Carl was at St. Joseph's, laboratory testing volume and revenue increased each year. He also instituted initiatives that improved department efficiency, better-organized workflow, and strengthened customer service.

A graduate of Mansfield State College, Carl continued his education at the University of Scranton where he earned a Masters of Science degree in Biochemistry. He presently remains active in a number of professional affiliations, including the Clinical Laboratory Management Association, the American Society of Clinical Pathologists, and the American Management Association.
